AMERICAN SENATE HAS FIRST CLASH IN TREATY DEBATE

Demand For Publication Of Text Marks Opening Of Contest

ATTACKS LEAGUE

Member Denounces It And Accuses Wilson Of Breaking Faith

CALLS U.S. 'VASSAL'

Sherman Says President Betrayed China, Italy And Poland

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Washington, May 25.—(Wireless from San Francisco).—A resolution introduced by Senator Johnson of California demanding the publication of the full text of the Peace Treaty plunged the Senate into an angry debate and brought about a number of sharp clashes between the Democratic Senators supporting the League of Nations and the Republicans who are almost united against it.

Action Is Deferred

The resolution was not passed and it is on the calendar for Monday, when the debate will be resumed and an effort will be made to pass it. When it was before the Senate it was a vehicle for bitter attacks against the American Delegation in Paris and the policy of withholding from the American people the terms of the Peace Treaty. President Wilson was publicly charged by Senator Johnson with subscribing to a policy of concealing from the people the commitments laid upon them by the Peace Conference. Senator Lodge and Senator Sherman made similar statements.

Sherman Opens Attack

Washington, May 23.—In the Senate yesterday Senator Sherman opened the attack on the Covenant of the League of Nations, which he denounced as "a revolutionary attempt to establish a Parliament of Nations controlled by an oligarchy."

Urges Separate Consideration

He moved that the Covenant of the League be separated from the Peace Treaty when the latter is submitted to the Senate for ratification. Senator Sherman accused President Wilson of breaking faith with China, Poland and Italy and yielding to Great Britain and he declared that the League reduced the United States to a vassal state.

Senator Johnson of California asked that the complete text of the Peace Treaty be furnished to the Senate.

Judge Lobingier Speaks Of New Significance For America's Memorial Day

Impressive Ceremony Held At Bubbling Well; Navy Men And Volunteers Parade; Boy Scouts Raise Flag

With simple and serious ceremonies, befitting the occasion, the American community observed Memorial Day yesterday. Most of the American hongs were closed for the day, as were also the various Federal offices, and the Stars and Stripes were flown throughout the Settlements.

The official Decoration Day program included a flag raising ceremony at the American Consulate and the customary services at Bubbling Well Cemetery in the morning. Well over a score of boys, members of No. 1. Troop, Boy Scouts, paraded before the Consulate at 8 a.m., in charge of Scoutmaster W. A. Hearn, for the flag raising. After the flag had been hoisted to the mast head Consul-General Sammons addressed the Scouts, congratulating them on their fine appearance and thanking them for their service and expressing the hope that they might appear in similar ceremonies in the future. Scoutmaster Hearn replied briefly on behalf of the Troop.

Service At Cemetery

Impressive services were held at Bubbling Well Cemetery at 9:15 a.m. when a large representation of the American community and its friends gathered to hear Judge Lobingier's eloquent and scholarly address, dealing with the new significance of the day.

American marines and sailors from the American men-of-war in port, the American Company, S.V.C., and the Public Band paraded to the Cemetery from the Recreation Ground and lined up along the avenue before the chapel for the services. The parade was in charge of Captain MacDermott, U.S.M.C., Commander Shapley and Lieut.-Commander Brown were in attendance with the marines, while Lieutenants Plonk and Haynie and Ensign James with the bluejackets and the American Company was under command of Captain Ransom. Major T. E. Trueman, Commandant of the Corps, Major H. W. Pilcher and Captain W. J. B. Dyer, of the Corps, were in attendance for the service.

The ceremonies were in charge of Mr. W. Roderick Dorsey, United States Consul. After the band had played "America" the Rev. C. L. Boynton offered prayer and following this Judge Lobingier addressed the assemblage. The address was as follows:

Judge Lobingier's Address

"Our Memorial Day, which we are met once more to observe, takes on this year a new and larger meaning. Four years ago in speaking from this platform I sought to trace the evolution of the day from a largely sectional to a truly national one and to show that, while it was originally a day of tribute to a portion only of our heroic dead, it had come in recent years to express the patriotic sentiment of our entire country. But with the present year it passes beyond even that. The graves which are decorated today lie not merely in that dear homeland of ours, nor yet in the outlying possessions. They lie in various parts of the world but especially in those vast fields of France where sleep the martyrs of Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne Forest.

In Picardy, beyond the sea,
A million heroes fought for me;
Where fires of death appalled the night,
And smoky curtains blinded sight,
They battled in that fiendish light—
For you and me.

In Picardy, beyond the sea,
Our warrior laddies bled for me;
For them the homeland held the most—
Nor did they fail to count the cost;
They went, lest liberty be lost—
For you and me.

In Picardy, beyond the sea,
Where countless heroes died for me!
The fleur-de-lis, deep-tinged with red,
Bends now o'er many a gory bed,
Where rest those sons of Freedom —dead—
For you and me.

"And not only has the scene of its observance been widened to embrace the whole world: the ranks of those to whom we owe tribute on Memorial Day have been correspondingly enlarged. For the cause in which they fell commanded the sympathy and, wherever possible, the active support of all free and progressive nations. And their sons like ours have fallen in many parts of the earth—in the rugged passes of the Alps as well as in the low Flanders fields; on the burning plains of Mesopotamia and in the jungles of Africa no less than on the frigid steppes of Siberia and the frozen marches of the Murmansk coast. In most of these localities our countrymen fell. But if we decorate their graves now or in future years can we ignore those of our brave Allies who sleep beside them? When we pay homage to the heroic dead of our Revolution do we discriminate between the soldier of the Continental Army and his French comrade? Such a course would be unworthy of our traditions and if Memorial Day is to retain its place in our national calendar of great days it must include within the ambit of its memories those of this world war and our heroes who fell therein. And if it includes these it cannot decently disregard their comrades in arms of other nationalities. If Memorial Day continues it will surely be observed at the American cemeteries in France. Can we imagine such an observance which omits that stricken country or Bri-

WAR IN AFGHANISTAN MAY BE NEARING END

Outcome Of Meeting At Kabul Of Conflicting Elements Is Awaited

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Simla, May 27.—Reuters special correspondent at Peshawar wires today.

Interest now centers on Kabul. Marching to that city with certain Afghan troops behind them are the envoy bearing General Barret's reply to the proposal for an armistice and behind him General Saleh Mahomed, the Afghan Commander-in-Chief, who says he has been recalled, but he is undoubtedly going to Kabul with an ulterior purpose.

Bringing up the rear but likely to get to Kabul first is Harbat Bibi, the Queen Mother, who possesses the fleetest motor cars of the late Amir. Dramatic events are possible when these conflicting personages and elements meet in Kabul.

Amir's Brother Living

Information was brought by the recent deputation and has since been confirmed that Nasrullah Khan, the brother of the late Amir, is alive and well. He is lodged, not locked up, in the Citadel and is allowed a certain amount of exercise.

The Amir occasionally visits him and apparently discusses matters of policy. He is fed with delicacies from the Amir's table, which led to the rumor that he had been poisoned. His family is not allowed access to him, but he is treated with no harshness in any other way. The money made by Nasrullah Khan in the gun running trade had been confiscated.

Little News From Kabul

It is difficult to obtain information concerning what is happening in the Palace at Kabul. The Amir, who lives in constant dread of assassination, hardly leaves its precincts. Only a few very trusted people are admitted to the precincts and he transacts most of his business over the telephone, the Palace being fitted with a complete installation which is connected with Jellalabad.

There have been no durbars since the one at which the Amir announced his intention to invade India. It remains to be seen whether the Amir will have the courage to hold a durbar to consider an armistice. Afghan precedent demands that an important step of this kind should not be taken without a speech from the throne. We will soon know the physical and moral effects of the recent bombing raid on Kabul.

The fronts remain quiet.

Steamer replied 'Yes!'"

The Admiralty announces that it received the above report from the coastguard station on the Butt of Lewis at 11 o'clock this morning and adds that an attempt is being made to intercept the steamer as it passes north of Scotland in order to verify the report.

SHROFF IS FINED $500 FOR FORGING MILK LABELS

Counsel Declares Client Was Scapegoat In Deception That Was Attempted

Allegations that the real culprits had escaped punishment were made by counsel for the defendant in the Mixed Court yesterday when Tsan Yung-ling, a Chinese shroff employed by a Japanese firm, was fined $500 for forgery of labels of an American brand of condensed milk which were to be applied to Japanese goods.

When the case was called before Assessor Grant Jones and Magistrate Wong Mr. Ward appeared on behalf of the Nestle and Anglo-Swiss Condensed Milk Co. and Mr. G. D. Musso for the accused. Mr. Ward handed in examples of both the forged and genuine labels together with tins of milk and stated that the accused was in the employ of a Japanese firm called Nakagawa and [illegible] Kiukiang Road which handled condensed milk known as the "King" brand.

Counsel's clients were sole agents for Borden's condensed milk of the "Eagle" brand, which had a wide sale up country and was known to many customers only through familiarity with the label. It had been found that a printer in Hankow Road was printing a large number of labels and wrappers in imitation of the "Eagle" brand and investigation revealed that 15,000 of these had been ordered, of which 8,000 had been printed and were seized when the police discovered the fraud. The story told by the defendant was that he had sold fifty cases of the Japanese milk to a merchant at Newchwang, who afterward sent a representative to Shanghai saying that he could not sell the goods. So the false labels were ordered for putting on this shipment and were to be applied as well to 200 cases of milk in godowns here. Mr. Ward asked for a severe penalty.

Mr. Musso said the fact that 8,000 labels had been ordered by the accused could not be denied and declared that the matter had come to the attention of the police through the printer trying to blackmail his client into paying him $20.

"The accused is being made a scapegoat in this case," said Mr. Musso. "If he had not admitted that the labels were printed entirely on his instruction—if he had said that he was ordered to have them printed by a certain Japanese firm—he would be the scapegoat in another court and might be sued for saying it, so jumping out of the frying pan into the fire."

The Assessor replied that this was no excuse for the attempt to "camouflage" American goods.

Mr. Musso stated that as the court knew, there was at present a boycott on Japanese goods, which consequently had no sale. The accused was not going to benefit by the transaction. Counsel said he did not wish to belittle the magnitude of the affair but asked the court to consider the defendant's frankness in admitting the matter.

"I submit that while the accused should be impressed with the fact that he must not do this sort of thing consideration should be taken of the fact that he was a tool and not the principal."

Mr. Musso said he thought a small fine would fit the case.

"A fine," corrected the Assessor. "Not a small fine. I think he should consider himself fortunate if he is not sent to prison."

Mr. Musso stated that his client was in Japanese employ and received a salary of $30 a month and commissions.

"The persons who ought to be punished," he declared, "are the rascals behind him."

Mr. Ward submitted that the defendant had been given ample opportunity and still persisted in taking the entire responsibility himself and counsel considered it curious that a man should say in one breach that he had done something on his own while his counsel should maintain in the next that he had not.

The court then assessed the fine.

GERMANY SUBMITS MODIFIED TERMS FOR PEACE TREATY

Counter-Proposals Made In Its Final Reply To Allied Draft

FIXES INDEMNITY

Admission To League And Mandates For Former Colonies Asked

PROTECTS KAISER

Accepts Army Reduction But Protests Against Plan For Frontiers

(French Wireless To Reuter)

Paris, May 29.—(Via Koukaza).—The German Delegation has handed over to the Peace Conference its counter-proposals to the conditions of peace laid down by the Entente.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau claims the right to pay an indemnity of twenty milliards of francs in 1926; the withdrawal of the Allied forces from German territory in four months; the admission of Germany to the League of Nations and the mandate over the former German colonies. He accepts the reduction of the German army to 100,000 men. Germany also accepts the restitution of Alsace-Lorraine to France and the constitution of Dantzig as a free city. She makes strong protests against the decisions taken regarding her Eastern frontiers and claims the right to annex Austria. She refuses to deliver up the Kaiser.

Outline Of Proposals Given

Paris, May 29.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—According to official news from Berlin dated May 27, the following are roughly the German counter-proposals.

Germany accepts the reduction of her military forces to 100,000 men.

She offers to deliver up all her big warships but insists on retaining her merchant ships.

She makes a strong protest against the decisions taken on the subject of her Eastern frontier and demands the taking of a plebiscite among the inhabitants of East Prussia.

Germany accepts the proposal that the port of Dantzig shall be declared a free city and that it shall be internationalised.

Wants Troops Removed

Germany asks that the Entente shall withdraw its troops from the occupied territories within four months of the signature of the peace preliminaries.

She requests her immediate admission to the League of Nations.

She insists on obtaining the mandate for her former colonies.

She is willing to pay, especially to France and Belgium, the amount of the damages caused in the war.

She declares that she will pay twenty milliards of marks in 1926 and after that she will pay an annual sum but the total should not exceed 100 milliards of marks.

Would Protect Kaiser

Germany refuses to deliver up the Kaiser, as well as the other persons indicated as being responsible for the war. She proposes that they shall appear before a Commission constituted of representatives of the belligerents, this tribunal to be presided over by a judge of a neutral country. It shall be charged to fix the guilt of the various persons.

Germany also asks the right to resume her foreign commerce and to have a mercantile marine.

She asks the right to tax German wealth transferred from Germany.

Much Work In Sight

Paris, May 26.—The indication is that after the signature of the Treaty of Peace the Conference may need two months or more to end its labors, many questions having been left aside without receiving a definite solution.

Treaty May Be Signed Within Next Two Weeks

(Reuter's Agency War Service),

London, May 27.—It is now estimated that the Treaty of Peace will be signed between the 10th and 15th of June.

Purpose Of Proposals

The document is based on the principle of right contained in Secretary of State Lansing's note. It attempts to remove the contradiction in the

WANG CHAO-MING CABLES PLEA TO U.S. CONGRESS

Charges Prussianism Is Being Perpetuated In China By Allies For Japan

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, May 26.—Mr. Wang Chao-ming, who is now in Paris, has cabled to the United States Congress that while Prussianism is to be destroyed all over the world the Entente and America have decided to perpetuate it in China in the interests of Japan. Either China's vast resources must eventually pass under Japan's domination or China must forthwith abandon the pursuits of peace and arm herself. He says that either would be a calamity.

IRISH-AMERICANS MEET REFUSAL FROM WILSON?

London Paper Gets Report That President Has Refused To Grant Interview

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

FOE'S PRIVATE PROPERTY MAY ALL BE TAKEN OVER

German Government May Have To Seize It For Payment Of Indemnities

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, May 26.—Private German property in Allied countries amounts to 15 milliards of francs. While the principle of the inviolability of private property is recognised by the Entente, it is intended to request the German Government to seize the property of its citizens and then to turn it over to the Allies as part payment of the indemnity.

TEXT OF TREATY DENIED TO FRENCH COMMISSION

Clemenceau Expresses Regret It Has Been Necessary To Withhold It

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, May 3.—Replying to the chairman of the French Budget Commission, M. Clemenceau expressed regret that he was unable to communicate the full text of the Peace terms pointing out that there cannot be a Treaty of Peace until it is signed. This point of view was shared by all the Allied and Associated Governments.

MOVE TO BAN LIQUOR IN U.S. MADE IN SENATE

Measures Taken For Repeal Of War Time Prohibition Are Preliminaries

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Washington, May 25.—(Wireless from San Francisco).—Measures for the repeal of war time prohibition in so far as they relate to wines and beer and for the enforcement of that act as well as the constitutional amendment were introduced today in the Senate.

Allied proposals whereby Germany's economic progress is rendered impossible, yet Germany is expected to bear the hardest economic impositions. It makes positive proposals showing what Germany can and cannot do and declares that the fulfilment of certain requirements is only possible through community of effort of Germany and her enemies.

The document expresses the opinion that the German counter-proposals form a practical instrument for negotiations, including oral conditions.

The counter-proposals will be published in Berlin simultaneously with their presentation at Versailles.

Concerning Labor Questions

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, in a note to M. Clemenceau on the 22nd, disagrees with the Allies' solution of labor questions.

He declares that the draft Peace Treaty does not take into consideration the demands of the International Trades Union Conference at Berne, whose decision that an international parliament of workers can pass binding international laws is accepted by the German Government. Therefore the German Delegation repeats its proposal to summon an international trades union conference during the peace negotiations or, alternatively, a statement by the trade union leaders of all countries is requisite.

The note declares that the stipulation in the Peace Treaty that money obtained by the liquidation of German property abroad be employed to meet claims for compensation seems unacceptable and it emphatically rejects the demand that Germany shall consent to a continuation of the encroachments on private property even after peace.

It expresses the conviction that a compromise can be found in that connection and suggests discussion by experts appointed by both sides.

States Germany's Position

London, May 23.—The correspondent of the Daily News states Herr Dernburg, in an interview, said that Germany was willing to indemnify the Allies, but would be unable to do so if she has not sufficient coal and if they are not given a chance to trade, nor can Germany agree to the loss of the Saar Basin and Silesia. He said that Germany would not resist, but would allow the Allies to run the country. The whole of the Government, he added, is unanimous in refusing to sign the Peace Treaty.

Meeting At Spa

Reuter's Pacific Service

Versailles, May 25.—(Wireless from San Francisco).—The German delegates, who left yesterday for Spa, will divide into two groups. One headed by Count Brockdorff-Rantzau will return to Versailles, while the other will remain at Spa for a few days.

Part Of Terms Presented To The Austrian Delegates

(French Wireless To Reuter)

Paris, May 29.—(Via Koukaza).—The Treaty with Austria will be handed over by the Allied representatives tomorrow at St. Germain.

Dealing With Adriatic Problem

Paris, May 29.—(Via Koukaza).—The Adriatic problem is still the subject of negotiations and seems to be on the way to a solution. An agreement has already been established on the question of the political status of Fiume and discussions continue concerning the economical questions involved.

Meet Austrian Delegates

Paris, May 29.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—At noon at the Chateau de St. Germain the Austrians will receive a part of their Peace Treaty with the same ceremony as accorded their former allies.

The Austrians will be granted fifteen days to examine the Treaty, which contains about 8,000 words. They must make their observations in writing.

Like Former Ceremony

The hall in which the Treaty will be handed to the Austrian Delegation is prepared similarly to that at Versailles. There is a horseshoe table in the middle of the room while at each end there is a table for judges. M. Clemenceau, President Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George will sit near the monumental fireplace with the Austrian delegates facing them. Accommodation is provided for sixty representatives of the press.

PARIS SEES KOLTCHAK AS RUSSIA'S MAIN HOPE

Views Given On Decision Of Allies To Give Recognition To Omsk Government

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, May 26.—The opinion prevailing in Paris circles concerning the recognition of Admiral Koltchak's Government is focussing on the fact that Admiral Koltchak is the leader of the movement to establish law and order while Lenin is the embodiment of everything opposed to law and order. Therefore the civilised world has reaped a decided advantage in the decision of the Allied Powers to support Admiral Koltchak.

MANY VARIETIES SEEN AT SWEET PEAS DISPLAY

Delightful Exhibit Attracts Many To Ayscough Home Yesterday

Over 100 varieties of sweet peas, presenting many remarkable colorings, were displayed yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ayscough, 20 Gordon Road, and the exhibition attracted a large number of lovers of flowers.

The blooms were attractively displayed on tables in the Ayscough Garden and presented a delightful vista. Specimens from Sutton, Henderson, Brand, Bath and Morse seeds made the wide range of variation in the flowers. One of the varieties attracting attention was a remarkable scarlet, exhibited by Mrs. Peebles.

The prizes went to Mr. C. R. Slowe, Mrs. A. J. Cornfoot and Mrs. J. Quin. Mr. Slowe's exhibit showed 49 varieties including many rare ones.

In presenting the awards, Mr. Ayscough said:

"It gives my wife and myself more pleasure than you wot of to have you here today. On behalf of the Committee of the Horticultural Society, I thank the exhibitors of these beautiful sweet peas for all the trouble they have taken bringing them here and arranging them so delightfully. I think that no sweet pea show in Shanghai has compared with this one as regards quality or quantity. So my wife, who has worked over this exhibition enthusiastically, and I are perfectly delighted at the result. The judges of the flowers have, I take it, not found it easy to come to a decision about the prize winners. I thank them for their work. They have decided that the prizes are to be awarded to Mr. C. R. Slowe, Mrs. Cornfoot and Mrs. Quin whom I congratulate. The second prize has been very kindly awarded anonymously. In conclusion may I quote the first and last verses from Rudyard Kipling's splendid poem. 'The Glory of the Garden.'

Our England is a garden that is full of stately views,
Of borders, beds and shrubberies and lawns and avenues,
With statues on the terraces and peacocks strutting by,
But the glory of the garden lies in more than meets the eye.

Oh, Adam was a gardener, and God who made him sees
That half a proper gardener's work is done upon his knees,
So when your work is finished, you can wash your hands and pray
For the glory of the garden that it may not pass away:
And the glory of the garden—it shall never pass away.

"Ladies and Gentlemen this poem seems to me to be the epitome of the feelings of us who love our gardens be they ever so small and who also have the wish and will to make Shanghai Beautiful."

Mr. Ayscough then presented the prizes to the winners.

Jubilee Dinner Held By British Institute

Representatives Of Dominions At Affair Presided Over By Duke Of Connaught

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, May 23.—At the Jubilee dinner of the Royal Colonial Institute tonight, the Duke of Connaught presided.

The guests included the Maharaja of Bikanir, the Marquis of Crewe, Viscount Byrce, Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, the High Commissioners of New Zealand and Canada, Mr. William Massey, the Prime Minister of New Zealand, General Currie, and General Sir William Birdwood.

Mr. W. F. Massey proposed the toast of "The Royal Family." He dwelt on the great sympathy shown during the war by the Royal House with the whole Empire, which, if possible, had increasingly endeared them to the whole Empire.

Native Races Lauded

He specially mentioned the work done by native populations in the war; the noble work of India and also of the Maoris of New Zealand. The native races of the Empire were as prepared as we were to take their part in the war. Mr. Massey said that the principal factor in the Empire was the sovereign.

Referring to the approaching visit of the Prince of Wales to Canada, Mr. Massey said he would get the welcome British Princes always received in the Dominions.

The Duke of Connaught, proposing the toast of "The Colonial Institute," dwelt on the work of the Institute in the past and said that in view of the work done in all parts of the Empire in the war, we must knit the feeling of comradeship in future. They had outgrown the title of Royal Colonial Institute and must extend their sphere.

Bryce Offers Toast

Viscount Bryce proposed the toast of the "United Empire." Lord Bryce, in dwelling on the need of drawing the parts of the Empire closer together, expressed delight at the approaching tour of the Prince of Wales and urged the necessity of more frequent exchange of visits of public men in the Dominions and the mother country.

Sir Hugh Clifford, the new Governor of Nigeria, paid a tribute to the fine work of the British merchants in the Empire's tropical possessions and emphasised the great value of the products of these possessions during the war. He said the work being done by British administrations in these colonies and protectorates was unparalleled in history. They were bringing the peoples from servitude to freedom. The first victory in the war was struck in Togoland by the Gold Coast colony

EMPIRE DAY IN LONDON IS FITTINGLY OBSERVED

Memorial Service Is Held At Westminister Abbey For Men Who Fell In War

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, May 24.—The principal ceremony in connection with Empire Day, which was the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria, has been a memorial service at Westminster Abbey for officers and men of the Overseas naval and military forces who fell in the war and a thanksgiving for its victorious conclusion.

His Majesty the King, in the uniform of a Field-Marshal; Queen Mary; Queen Alexandra; the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught and other royalties were in the crowded congregation, which also included the First Lord of the Admiralty; the Secretary of State for War; Admiral Sir Reginald Wemyss; General Sir William Birdwood; General Currie; General Sir Julian Byng; other distinguished naval and military officers; Mr. W. F. Massey, Premier of New Zealand; Sir George Perley, High Commissioner for Canada; Mr. W. P. Schreiner, High Commissioner for South Africa; other representatives of the Dominions overseas and members of the military contingents.

The Guards' band played.

Address Of Archbishop

The Archbishop of Canterbury, in the course of his address, dwelt eloquently on the assistance rendered in the war by the Dominions and colonies to the motherland. He said that thousands of stalwart men, who, in the springtime of their radiant manhood, had been our glory and hope for the coming years on the fertile plains and mountain slopes of Canada or the vast lands under the Southern Cross, had unflinchingly laid down their lives that the world might be a better world and secured against high-handed wrong. The Archbishop cried in stirring tones "Let no man say henceforth that the colonies—the Dominions of these later years—have no history. When men tell in the centuries to come of Gallipoli, Vimy Ridge, Villers-Bretonneux and Ypres, it will be for the indomitable prowess and selfless devotion of the men of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Newfoundland that they again, and yet again, thank God."

The service concluded with the Recessional, the National Anthem, the last post and reveille.

Concert In Hyde Park

Their Majesties subsequently attended a concert at Hyde Park by the Imperial choir, with 10,000 voices and the massed bands of the Guards, conducted by Dr. Charles Harriss, the founder of Empire Day concerts.

A thanksgiving service was held at eventide at St. Paul's Cathedral to which the Boys Brigades, Scouts and Girl Guides marched past the Duchess of Argyll, who was supported by leading generals of the overseas forces at the saluting-base outside the Cathedral, where sixty-four flags of the Empire were grouped.

Scene Is Dramatic

London, May 25.—A great moment in the Empire Day celebration was when the crowd of 250,000 people in Hyde Park sang "God save the King." There was subsequently a wonderful, spontaneous manifestation of loyalty when the choir concluded the program of hymns with the national songs of Scotland, Ireland and Wales. An insistent demand for the King arose from the crowd and when His Majesty mounted the conductor's rostrum, and acknowledged the greetings of the multitude the latter sang "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Striking Shanghai Students Hold Demonstration Today

Twenty Thousand Representing 60 Schools Will Take Part In Memorial Service And Parade

Twenty thousand student strikers in Shanghai, representing over 60 schools in Nantao, Chapei, Pootung and the International and French Settlements will hold a patriotic demonstration today. The program will begin with a memorial service in honor of the late Mr. Kuo Ching-kwan, who lost his life in the Peking students' demonstration on May 4. The service will take place at the Public Recreation Grounds at Pont St. Catherine, West Gate, at nine o'clock.

The students will for the first time appear in their uniform white hats manufactured by a number of girls' schools at Shanghai. After the service, the demonstrators will participate in a parade through Shanghai and Nantao. The parade will return to the Recreation Ground shortly before noon, when several speeches will be delivered. A first aid to the injured corps will be in attendance under the supervision of Dr. F. T. King.

Government Is Firm

Peking is firm in her decision to suppress the demonstration there. An ultimatum was issued to the students Wednesday allowing them three days within which to resume their studies. The police, it is reported, are compiling a list of the reluctant strikers.

While reports show that certain schools at the capital have shown weakness in their stand against the pressure, the local students are determined to see the movement effectively carried on until the Government yields to their demands for the punishment of the pro-Japanese officials and the release of the editors and students now in custody as a result of the anti-Japanese movement.

Appeal Issued Here

General Lu Yung-hsiang, the Shanghai Defense Commissioner, in a letter to the Kiangsu Educational Association, appealed to the organisation for help to persuade the students to resume their work. He said that it was not his wish to bring pressure on public wishes as expressed by the student strikers. Nevertheless, he pointed out that it would be futile for the students to quit working when no good is to be accomplished by their action.

Reports received from Soochow show that 13 schools, involving 3,000 students, have joined the Shanghai movement. Sungkiang reports that all schools there have been closed for work. Besides sending agitators to neighboring villages of Shanghai, the local students union has despatched representatives to Yangchow, Kashing, Foochow, Wusih, Taishin, Taihsien and Tsikiang.

The faculty and students of the McTyeire High School invited the patrons to a meeting, May 28, in the Moore Memorial Hall. Two representatives were appointed by the students to state their hopes and aims in entering into the student movement. They spoke as follows:

Purposes Are Stated

"Now the time has come when every patriot of the Chinese Republic is forced to shout 'no more shall we slavishly submit to the control of the handful of corrupt men, who are the officers of a democratic Republic, but actually secret dealers, selling out China to fill their own purses.' No doubt there are some good conscientious politicians, but the evil majority has overrun them. The lower class is too ignorant to raise its voice or take definite action. So the task is left in the hands of the middle class. The indignant students, though under the rule of teachers and parents, feel that they have to put down their books and give themselves in patriotic service. Sometime ago Chinese women had no voice at all, nor, by any means, a chance to co-operate shoulder to shoulder with men, but since the entrance of western civilisation, women have gradually mounted up in spite of the opposing conservative forces. Now there is a chance for women to prove their patriotism and ability, many girls have joined the protest against the traitors, but not to create anarchism in China as was made in the false announcement of the Japanese newspapers. It is the voice of all the patriotic Chinese without underhand influence from any other people, such as is found in the customary false accusations of the Japanese, recently published in the Ashashi Sinbon.

"'Shall McTyeire girls also stop studying?' that is the question. For four causes, we shall do so. In the first place, we love China intensely. Secondly, we love McTyeire and wish her to have her share in deeds of nobility. Thirdly, we want to show that Christian girls are as enthusiastic as others. Finally, it is a chance to learn how to co-operate in work, which is much needed in China at present.

Not Neglecting Work

"Though we are joining in the movement, yet we are still carrying on four hours regular work every day. Thus we can avoid neglecting our educational work and still do some service for our country."

The faculty's sympathy is on the side of the students, but they wished to have the opinion of the patrons before any definite action took place. The question of our annual concert, which takes place every summer, was also brought up before the patrons, and it was decided to omit it this year. The result of the meeting was very satisfactory to the students. Letters were received from some of the patrons and a number of them, who attended the meeting, expressed their sympathy with the movement.

McTyeire did not enter among the first, yet we are not sorry to have taken a slower step than others. The reason is that, at first, the cause of stopping school and the work to be done during the leisure time were not definitely told, so we, ourselves, were not willing to give up our work and take the step, which, as we previously thought, was merely wasting precious time, when education is the most practical need in China. But now since a satisfactory cause for stopping regular school is clearly known and the sympathy of the patrons, who support McTyeire, is with us in this patriotic work, we, with our whole hearts, are ready to enter and work in co-operation with the other students.

Police Heads Deny Report Of Petition From Chinese

Reports that the Chinese constables of the Municipal Police had addressed a petition to the head of the department asking for better protection against Japanese civilians were denied by police officials last night. No such action is anticipated although officials admit that the constables have discussed the matter among themselves.

Close touch is being maintained between administrative heads of the department and the Chinese constables to prevent any trouble between the police and Japanese civilians.

The constables have been told by their superiors that it is the duty to keep order, not to cause trouble. Lectures have been delivered to all details at all stations. It has been pointed out to the patrolmen that the stabbing affray in Yangtszepoo Road is an incident having no bearing on the existing situation.

The police have had little trouble with the strikers and the peaceful methods adopted by those urging the boycott have given the department little cause for worry. Wayside Station reported that 200 Chinese gathered in Yangtszepoo Road about nine o'clock Thursday night and stoned passing Japanese. The crowd dispersed when a foreign sergeant was detailed to investigate.

Four Chinese girl students, wearing white hats, made a systematic canvass of shopkeepers on North Szechuen Road yesterday and the day before, inquiring at each shop whether Japanese goods were on sale.

Katsuza Matsumoto, wife of an employe at the Naigai Wata Kaisha number three mill, reported to the Wayside police station that she had been stoned near the Markham Road Bridge while riding in a ricsha from Chapei. The ricsha coolie was questioned by the police and said he saw no stones thrown.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at Bishop Graves' home, attended by many friends, after which the bride and groom left on their wedding trip.

Japanese Police Head Says Agreement Was Not Kept

Witness In Suit Against Council Claims There Was Arrangement Regarding Japanese Patrolmen

Cross-examination of I. Toyoda, chief of the Japanese Consular police, and examination of two new witnesses occupied the Court of Consuls yesterday afternoon in the hearing of the action for Tls. 15,000 damages brought against the Municipal Council by Suye Harayama, widow of a Japanese draper who was killed in the Hongkew riots on July 19, 1918.

The Court was composed of Mr. D. Siffert, Sir Everard Fraser and Mr. Th. Raaschou and counsel included Messrs. W. S. Fleming, N. C. Home, T. Kikuchi and T. Murakami, representing the plaintiff, and Mr. D. McNeill, representing the Council.

The chief of the Consular police, who was questioned at length by Mr. McNeill, maintained that there had been a breach of faith on the part of the Municipal police in that the whole of the Hongkew detachment of Japanese Municipal constables were not on duty patrolling the streets on the night of the shooting, an arrangement, the witness insisted, which had been entered into by himself and Inspector Bourke.

The witness stated that he and his subordinates passed continually up and down Woosung Road on the night of July 18, advising Japanese to go home. The crowds were much larger than on the previous night owing to a widespread rumor that some Portuguese were inciting the Chinese to attack Japanese shops. In reply to a question by Mr. McNeill the witness said he supposed it was true that the rumor grew out of this—that a Portuguese on the night of the 16th had pushed a Japanese down and, when he rose again, knocked him down. Toyoda stated that he went to see Inspector Bourke between 2 and 3 a.m. on the morning of July 19 "for safety."

"For whose safety," asked Mr. McNeill.

"From my viewpoint, the safety of Japanese."

The witness said he went to Hongkew police station on the 17th and saw Chief Inspector Bourke and Inspector Reeves regarding these rumors. Inspector Reeves had stated that there was a Portuguese Club on North Szechuen Road and that he would go and investigate—which, witness declared, showed that the rumor was strong.

"And up to this time you knew that the only trouble which had occurred consisted of five assaults made upon Chinese by Japanese?" said Mr. McNeill.

The witness said he did not know what reports the police had.

"I put it to him that it is absurd that he went to Inspector Bourke to make arrangements for the safety of the Japanese," said counsel.

Mr. Fleming objected, stating that the witness had not made the police reports. Sir Everard inquired if the witness meant to say that he did not know of these assaults.

"I put it to him that his reason in going, if any, was because of the extremely disorderly attitude of the Japanese population and to make arrangements to control the unruly populace," said Mr. McNeill.

The witness replied that he had not gone to see Inspector Bourke because the Japanese crowd was disorderly and uncontrollable but because he himself had no police authority on the streets.

"Inspector Bourke and Inspector Okuchi deny that any such interview ever took place," declared counsel for the defendants, the witness insisting that it did.

The witness said he considered the contract to have been broken when he went the rounds and found only five Japanese constables were on duty. He did not know if the remainder were under orders to stand by at headquarters but he could say that they were not standing by for the reason that the constable who rushed out and was killed was dressed only in his night clothes.

Under re-direct examination by Mr. Fleming the chief of the Consular police stated that on the day previous to the shooting he and his subordinates had advised Japanese shopkeepers, including the Woosung Road shopkeepers' association, to keep their young employes within doors at night and had advised the closing of shops on any sign of trouble, many of them having done so.

S. Toriumi, 151 Woosung Road, an employe of a Customs broker, was the next witness called. He stated that on the night of July 19 at about 11:40 p.m. his attention was attracted by the blowing of police whistles and he went out to investigate. At the intersection of Woosung and Boone Roads, near the Market, he saw a Japanese being beaten by Chinese constables. There were 30 or 40 constables there and 5 or 6 were doing the beating. He ran back and told the inmates of the house what was happening and then went out again. He saw 4 or 5 Japanese running West on Boone Road chased by Chinese constables and civilians. They turned into Woosung Road and he tried to get back into his home but the door was locked and he took refuge in an alleyway across the street, breaking into a house. Another Japanese and a Japanese Municipal policeman were with him, the policeman, however, going back to the street. After the policeman left he heard shots in the street, and after he had been in the house fifteen minutes a single shot. He left the house and went up an alleyway opening on Boone Road. Coming out of the alleyway he saw a Japanese fall down shot on Boone Road. A European in his shirt sleeves had put the wounded man in a ricsha and taken him away. The witness said he then rushed back to the house he had left and waited half an hour, then going home. In reply to the court he stated that he had seen no tram cars running after 11:40 p.m., though he had seen them previous to that hour.

F. Kawakami, a Japanese curio dealer of 265 Woosung Road, gave testimony regarding occurences in the neighborhood of Hongkew police station. He said that shortly after midnight on the night of the 19th, while he was at a branch shop at the corner of Minghong and Woosung Roads, he heard police whistles, reports of firearms and the sound of doors being broken in. He came out on the verandah of the place and saw 40 or 50 Chinese constables rush out of the front gate of the police station. Soon afterward about 10 Sikhs and some Europeans came out and went toward the Market at the double. He then saw a Japanese constable, bleeding about the head, run toward the station from the direction of the Market and go inside. Before this, but after the constables had run out, he saw a Japanese, chased by 2 or 3 Chinese constables, come to the front gate of the Station. The constables followed him about half-way to the gate from Woosung Road. He also noticed a Japanese who was covered with blood being taken to the station in a ricsha by a Sikh policeman. At about 1 a.m., the witness said, he went out and found little evidence of disorder. Earlier in the evening he saw a crowd of 70 or 80 Chinese constables at the Market, with 20 or 30 Chinese in civilian dress.

Under cross-examination the witness said that the constables who came out of the station were all armed with rifles, some having bayonets fixed. He said that when he passed on Quinsan Road earlier in the evening he found everything quiet. His reason for going out was that someone had told him there was a crowd at Quinsan Gardens.

The case was adjourned until Monday afternoon.

Memorial Day Has New Significance

tain, Belgium, Italy, Portugal or any other nation whose dead lie near?

"No, Memorial Day must keep step with history and once again, as it has at least once before, adapt itself to changed conditions, or its general observance must ultimately cease. That the latter alternative will not prevail I feel confident from what I know of the spirit of our people. And we must accordingly prepare for that larger place which Memorial Day is to occupy in our national life of the future. And here in this International Settlement of Shanghai, where the representatives of so many nations dwell together in harmony and maintain their common government, we may find probably the most fitting place and the most unique opportunity for planning an observance of Memorial Day which will be worthy of that new world which has emerged from the great war.

"If we adapt our Memorial Day to these new conditions it may well become the best expression of that new spirit among the nations which is, let us hope and believe, soon to flower in the work of the Paris Conference. There have been many proponents of the League of Nations,—Isaiah, Leibnitz, Henri IV with his "Grand Design," Joel Barlow and Tennyson, Victor Hugo and Tolstoi. But probably no single nation has ever so strikingly as ours embodied in its own history a prophecy of such a League. You who have read that informing book by John Fiske, entitled "The Critical Period of American History" will recall how closely the relations of our thirteen colonies during the few, fateful years between the peace treaty of 1783 and the meeting of the Federal Constitutional Convention paralleled those of the European nations on the eve of the late war. There was the same distrust and suspicion, the same petty jealousy and rivalry, the same fear that one might somehow reap an advantage which the others would not share. But out of that chaos, and in spite of those centrifugal forces, came the League of States which our Federal Constitution established. Foi each of our thirteen colonies claimed to be sovereign and each had to be persuaded, often with great difficulty, to surrender some of that claim 'in order to from a more perfect union.' And that surrender was but the beginning of a great movement which, within a century, swept from the Atlantic to the Pacific and created one of the world's great empires. But it was an empire of equals. Each new state was admitted 'on an equal footing with the original states' and in some cases, as with Vermont and Texas, the applicant had actually been an independent republic. Thus the expansion of our American League of States has proceeded for nearly a century and a third and who shall say that the process is ended? or that it logically can end save in the world wide League which is now forming? As the waters of our mighty Mississippi flow to the Gulf and mingle ultimately with the ocean, so the stream of American history flows inevitably toward that world League of Nations and finds there its natural goal. It was no mere accident that our one epic poet, Joel Barlow, writing under the spell of our national beginnings, recorded in the tenth book of his 'Columbiad' his vision of the Parliament of Man to be opened by 'a sire elect' in a 'peace palace' on the banks of the Nile.

"Nor should we be discouraged if some of our 'elder statesmen' have not yet caught that vision. For the same phenomenon has occurred before in our history. Were not some of our most famous revolutionary patriots found later in the ranks of those who opposed the adoption of the Federal Constitution and the 'more perfect union' which it alone offered?

"It is with regret that we find among these the names of George Clinton, Richard Henry Lee, the friend and comrade of Washington, and Patrick Henry whose fiery words helped so greatly to kindle the flame of liberty. Nay more, Samuel Adams, 'the man of the town meeting,' John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress, and even Thomas Jefferson were at one time opponents of the instrument which welded us into a nation.

"Such was the force of provincialism and conservatism then! And it was probably the same lack of prophetic vision which accounted to no small extent for the secessionist attitude of '61. But the mighty current of American history moved majestically and irresistibly on. A 'more perfect union' was formed; the efforts to destroy it were frustrated; the League of 'free and equal' states did spread from sea to sea and does contain the largest group of unilingual people on the globe. And unless America repudiates her glorious traditions—which God forbid—she will become an active and zealous member of the League of Nations. How fitting it would be if in this memorable year, which witnesses the accomplishment by one of our countrymen of the feat for which the Ages have waited—the transatlantic aerial flight—our country should be the first to ratify the world Covenant.

"And what a future then awaits our Memorial Day! Then consecrated to the heroic dead of all the free peoples it will naturally become the foremost among international days, enlisting the co-operation of the best in every land and helping to realise the prophecy of Lewis Morris that

"'There comes a time when brotherhood shows stronger
Than the narrow bounds which now divide the world;
When cannons roar and trumpets blare no longer,
When ironclad rusts, and battle flags are furled;
When barriers of race and speech and creed which sever
Shall merge in one humanity forever.'"

Following the address there was a selection by the band, after which the Rev. C. F. McRae pronounced the benediction. The American Company then fired volleys over the graves of the American soldier and sailor dead, decorated with flowers and wreaths by the officers and men of the Second Division, Asiatic Fleet, of the U. S. Navy. "Taps," by the bugler from the U.S.S. Wilmington concluded the ceremonies.

Regatta Opens Today

The Spring Regatta of the Shanghai Rowing Club opens this afternoon at Henli, and, as far as present indications go, the weather is likely to be ideal for spectators, though possibly rather too hot for those taking an active part in the program, and the races will in consequence be very trying to those whose training has not been as perfect as could be wished. There may, however, be a favorable breeze blowing up on the Hsinyangkong reach, as is so often the case even when it is stifling hot down in Shanghai, and if so the oarsmen will find same very grateful.

There are a goodly number of houseboats up on the course, and it is expected that the effect will be very striking when they are all illuminated at night. There are few pleasanter sights in this part of the world than the Henli reach presents during regatta time—especially at night time when the numerous craft of all descriptions lining both banks of the Hsinyangkong cast innumerable reflections on the placid waters of the reach and the scene is quite an eastern fairyland. The first dragon boat race will probably be held after dinner tonight, and those purposing taking part in same should give in their names to one of the Committee during the afternoon. The laodahs will man the boats first, to try them out, and it is particularly requested that great care be taken not to damage the boats in any way, as it was with considerable difficulty that they were obtained at all.

There will most likely be an impromptu concert this evening, and all those willing to assist thereat should see Mr. Gande, who will be M.C. for the entertainment. There will also be a concert tomorrow night. It is quite unnecessary to tell those who have been present at these jolly Henli functions before, how thoroughly enjoyable they always are in every way: and this year it is stated that there will be an unusually fine selection of talent to choose from.

All rowing members who will be stopping at Henli over Monday should notify the committee, so that races may be arranged for that day also.

Every provision has been made to cater for the comfort of the general public, as distinct from the active oarsmen; by the courtesy of the railway authorities arrangements have been made to have sleeping cars stationed at Henli during the regatta.

Sleeping Berths may be reserved on application to Mr. T. R. Macdonald hon. sec. of the S.R.C.

Meals will be served on dining coach on railway siding.

The train service is as follows, the time being Shanghai local time:

Saturday—Special leave Shanghai, 1:20 p.m.; arrive Henli, 2:29 p.m. Special leave Henli, 8:13 p.m.; arrive Shanghai, 9:16 p.m.

Court Declines Order For Payment Of Rent

An application for the payment by the plaintiffs for Taels 810 was made in the British Supreme Court yesterday by the defendant in the action of L'Epargne Franco-Chinoise vs. Mr. J. T. Hammond. The amount is asked for rent said to be due the defendant and which Mr. McNeill, counsel for plaintiffs, had given his personal undertaking to pay.

Judge Skinner Turner declined to make any order in the absence of Mr. McNeill and said that if Mr. Hammond desired to bring the matter before the Court, he could file a motion and give Mr. McNeill due notice.

Mr. Hammond stated in his application that he had twice applied to Mr. McNeill for the payment of the money and on the second occasion, his shroff and clerk were told that the money would not be paid and a bill for $1,460 costs was presented to them.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

NOTICE

Messrs. CROSSE & BLACKWELL much regret that for the first time for a hundred years war conditions prevent many of their products being shipped to China. They much appreciate the letters they are receiving, and in reply would state that it is fully recognised here that under the circumstances of life in China the absence of English delicacies and foods is a very real hardship.

Messrs. CROSSE & BLACKWELL will take care that not a day shall be lost in forwarding supplies when a return to more normal conditions permits. In the meantime they trust that those who have been accustomed to rely on their products will be good enough to accept this explanation.

Banking Service with AMERICA —direct and personal

EXPORTERS or importers now engaged in, or thinking of, trade with America would do well to consider not only the special nature of our facilities, but also the personal interest we take in every one of our customers' transactions.

First of all, we offer direct banking service—without intermediary dealings, or unnecessary delays.

Equally important is our personal service. Every transaction is followed through, both here and in America, by our own representatives with a personal interest, the value of which is evident in the service rendered.

May we talk with you about America?

The New Party In British Politics

(Contributed)

IT is increasingly evident to students of British politics that the present Coalition is in disfavor throughout the British Isles. The unprecedented majority which Lloyd George got at the close of the year was satisfactory only from the point of view that it revealed the solidarity of the United Kingdom upon the question of the final settlement of peace. But the House of Commons thus constituted is deadly dull. The big majority is too unwieldly, it does not tend to arouse interest in the doings of this historic chamber and the bye-elections that have since taken place have shown the country's tendency to regret the return of such a large number of Coalitionist members.

There was, however, no other possible result to the General Election. Mr. Asquith with all his good points was discredited in the eyes of the nation. Neither he nor his lieutenants could be entrusted with the task of drawing up the final peace terms. It had to be done by Lloyd George. Not a few have regretted that Lloyd George had to be so dependent upon the Unionists for his support in the last House, while many of his ardent admirers still further bemoan the fact that a similar state of affairs exists again in the new House. Lloyd George cannot go back and serve under Asquith. That would be an utter impossibility for a man with the type of virile and impetuous mind possessed by Britain's Premier. Neither is it at all likely that Asquith could serve under his old chief lieutenant. The differences which severed the partnership and incidentally split the Liberal Party were too acute to permit of this being again possible. If Asquith resigned Lloyd George could take over the leadership of the party and reinvigorate it to such an extent that it might again become a living force in the country. But there are no indications of Mr. Asquith's desiring to withdraw from the political arena where he has been such an ornament for a number of years. He is a politician to the back bone and at the present moment is merely biding his time. He is patient and content to wait.

Meanwhile the position of Lloyd George is somewhat anomalous. His old friends were delighted with his recent oratorical outburst against the London Times. It indicated that break with Northcliffe which they ardently desired. But it is not without its due significance. The Northcliffe press is strongly represented in the present House of Commons. It has been a tremendous power in British politics and Governments have trembled before today at the furiousness of its onslaughts. Up to the last General Election, Lloyd George had its support. But he has forfeited it now because he refuses to beat the drum at Lord Northcliffe's dictation. The position of the Premier then is a difficult one. His government is not popular. The terms of the peace treaty, whenever that important document is signed, will not give general satisfaction. No peace treaty ever yet signed has. In the whole of British history the Governments responsible for peace treaties have become unpopular. More is always demanded and expected than is obtained. And we are not yet in the millenium.

Great promises have been made along the lines of social legislation which have got to be made good. Can the Premier redeem his election pledges? With the House of Commons constituted as it now is, it is next to impossible. Wealthy landowners, the class that have always been against democratic progress, are strongly entrenched in both Houses of Parliament. Where then lies the hope for Lloyd George to fulfill his great destiny for the Empire he loves to serve? Only in the formation of an altogether new party.

The time is now ripe for this. The electorate would welcome the formation of a party with Lloyd George at its head: a progressive and virile party, a party out to help the under dog, a party determined to cripple still further the power of the Lords and to see that the evils revealed in the Sankey Report are never again possible. There is a section in the Unionist Party desirous of this. They may at present be lukewarm but they are there. They would give full support to Lloyd George. If he and Bonar Law combine and announce a bold policy, they will win the support of this section. The old conservative section, which has once again crept into the House, is strong, but it can never face a democratic country with its true colors nailed to the mast. The progressive Liberals would welcome Lloyd George, while the dissentients would soon become a negligible quantity. But the new party must be more than a Coalition. It must be a party, with its own whips, its own organisations. It must have no truck with either of the Liberal or Unionist Central Offices. There must be a clean sweep.

There must again be no delay in starting this new party. The country is ready for it. Now is the day of Lloyd George's political salvation. If he delays his opportunity will be lost, perhaps never to come again. His first work as soon as peace is signed is to let the House of Commons know what he intends to put through. He will then see very quickly, if he does not already know, upon what measure of support he can rely or how far he can attempt to go with his pet schemes for the amelioration and improvement of the condition of the lower classes of the British Isles. A policy now of weakness or vacillation on his part will be fatal. It will merely encourage his foes and dishearten his best friends. On the other hand, if he breaks away from the present Coalition because he feels his hands tied the country will be proud of his integrity and the public spirit, devotion and patriotism which have led him to take the step. His motto above all must be the old Roman ideal, "Then none were for the party, then all were for the state." Only as he keeps this ideal before him will he approach as near perfection in his government of the country as it is possible for any human institution to do.

Japanese Press Comment On Far East Topics

Commercial Rivalry In China

Tokio Yorodzu.—Everybody expected that China would be the scene of the greates' international commercial competition after the war and this expectation is now in the process of realisation. The United States is trying to acquire the largest interest, and is making every effort to that end in regard to the loan question and for the extension of markets. A phase of this effort has taken shape in the anti-Japanese movement in China.

It appears that Europeans and Americans are laboring under an illusion regarding China. China, including Thibet and Mongolia, is larger than Europe, and her resources are considered to be inexhaustible. They think that these resources have been left unexploited owing to the lack of means of communication. This is largely true, but at the same time we must remember that China has a history of 3,000 years and this old civilisation, in its day, opened up what resources there may be in China. The case is entirely different from that of a newly-found country.

Of all the Europeans, Americans and Britons have the best knowledge regarding China, but Americans lack the necessary understanding, and accordingly they hurry to acquire economic interests, and think that the only obstacle in their way is Japan.

This is very embarrassing to us. We may point out that Japanese understand China better than Americans. What Japan does in China cannot conflict with the action of the United States. We believe that it will be Great Britain which will be most affected by the actions of American capitalists in China.

Before the war, German trade in China was greatly developed. This was because German goods were far cheaper than British products, and it will be difficult to secure a market in China for such high-priced goods as those from the United States, who must inevitably compete with Great Britain. Not only is Japanese merchandise cheap, but despite the present anti-Japanese agitation, there are special racial relations, and Japanese goods are best suited to the Chinese requirements. Moreover, Japan has a great geographical advantage, and not a few of the Japanese exports to China are peculiar to Japan.

There is, therefore, no reason why Japan's commercial interests in China should clash with America's. If Americans think that Japan is standing in the way of American development because she has special economic interests or political influence in China, they are egregiously mistaken. China is a profitable market for a country having small capital, such as Japan, but the Chinese market is not so profitable to a country of America's capital. The United States will continue her activities in China with her abundant capital and strong influence, but we believe that she will find out her mistake sooner or later.

Japanese Colonial Department

Tokio Asahi.—The Japanese Government proposes to establish a Colonel Department. During last session the House of Representatives adopted a representation to the Government that the Bureau of Agriculture in the Department of Agriculture and Commerce be made a separate Department, and there were subsequently rumors that a section of the officials favored the conversion of the Imperial Railway Board into a Department of the Government. We do not know whether the representation of the House will be realised, but we believe that the establishment of a Colonial Department is far more necessary than that of a Department of Agriculture or Railways. At the time of the Matsukata Cabinet a Department of Colonial Affairs was established with Viscount Tomonosuke Takashima as the Minister in charge, but it was soon abolished. Subsequently, the second Katsura Cabinet established a Bureau of Colonisation and intended ultimately to raise it to the rank of a Department, but in the administrative reforms carried out by the Yamamoto Cabinet, the Bureau was again abolished. It was revived by the Terauchi Cabinet. It was rather imprudent of the Japanese authorities to have established the Department of Colonial Affairs simply because Japan had obtained Formosa as the result of the Sino-Japanese War, and it is only natural that the Department should have been abolished. There has been since then, however, a great change in the situation. Besides Formosa, Japan now controls Korea, Saghalien, Kwantung, and the South Manchuria Railway zone. Moreover, the Marshall, Caroline, and Marianne Islands are to be entrusted to Japanese rule. Tsingtau is to be returned to China, but the Japanese authorities will have important tasks in connection with the railways, mines, and other interests of Shantung. Japan's relations with North Manchuria, East Mongolia, and Siberia have undergone a great change since the outbreak of the war. We believe that the existing Bureau of Colonisation will not be able to rise to the occasion.

Colonial questions are of great importance throughout the world. Great Britain has serious problems to solve in India and Egypt. Japan ought fundamentally to reform the administration of Korea, and also of Formosa. The three islands in the South Pacific are relatively small in area, but the administration of these islands will prove in the eyes of the world the test of Japan's capacity for colonial administration. The importance of the rule of the South Pacific islands cannot, therefore, be over-estimated. Japan has no effective organ for centralising and directing colonial administration. There is the Bureau of Colonisation, but its authority is not high enough even to match that of the administrators in the colonies. For instance, the Governor-General of Korea is practically subordinate to no one but the Emperor, not only in military but in all administrative matters. As a result, there is no unity in the administration of colonies. The best means to meet the situation would be to establish the Department of Colonisation in Tokio and invest it with sufficient authority. This innovation is necessary when we consider the matter in its financial aspect alone. In the colonial budgets for the current financial year Y.77,500,000 are alloted to Korea, Y.70,300,000 to Formosa, Y.8,600,000 to Kwantung, and Y.5,800,000 to Saghalien. There are also various semi-official business and banking concerns, such as the South Manchuria Railway Company, the Bank of Korea, the Oriental Colonisation Company, the Bank of Formosa, and the Oriental Electric Company. As there is no central organ to control these concerns, not to mention the financial affairs of the colonial governments, much inconvenience is often felt. Under the present system the Cabinet consists of nine Departments, in which there are various bureaux and sections, but this system was established over 30 years ago and there has been a great change in general conditions during the interval. It is only natural that a new Department of Colonisation should be established to meet that change. The Japanese authorities should take a lesson from the various administrative reforms adopted by Great Britain from time to time.

Outlets For Emigration

Kokumin (by ex-Count Kodzui Otani).—Great Britain and the United States prohibit Oriental immigration. Japanese are accordingly indignant, but in my opinion their indignation is not based on good grounds. We had better allow the two countries to deal with their territories as they please. Why should we force on them what they do not desire? If Great Britain and the United States refused to admit people to their uninhabited territories and there was no place elsewhere to go, we might then make them open the door to us, even by force. This is not the case, however, and we ought to leave them alone. British and American territories are not the only places to go to. South America, the Dutch East Indies, and Siberia are all suited to Japanese immigration. I believe that the best place for Japanese immigration is the Dutch East Indies.

In these islands the authorities have no such ill-feeling against Japanese immigrants as in British and American territories, and there are no restrictions on immigration. The only trouble is that the Japanese who have hitherto gone to the Dutch East Indies are mostly ruffians, who often got into trouble with the Dutch authorities. Some ruffians often resort to violence and make themselves generally disliked. Respectable Japanese, however, are welcomed by the Dutch authorities.

Another fault of the Japanese in the Dutch East Indies is to take sides with the natives. The natives are fraudulent and unreliable. They know that Japanese are a chivalrous people, and magnify the despotism of the Dutch authorities to them. They try to remedy the situation with Japanese assistance. This has sometimes led to disputes, and Japanese must be very careful hereafter. In taking the side of the natives Japanese are acting in the same way as American missionaries in Korea. The Dutch authorities will have the same feeling toward Japanese as we have toward American missionaries. Never do to others what you would not have them do to you.

Japan And China Inseparable

Tokio Yomiuri.—The Chinese are dissatisfied with the manner in which the Shantung question has been settled, but the Japanese also are not satisfied. Japan does not want to annex territory or acquire rights as trophies of war. On the contrary she wishes to return all the interests to China without conditions, but as it is impossible to do so she proposes to retain part of the interests. We wish that all the rights in Shantung could be restored to China unconditionally, but the policy of China does not justify us in doing so. Was it not China which opened the way to foreign interference in Asia by using the influence of the three Powers to make Japan relinquish her right to Liaotung? Subsequently, China sided with Russia at one time and with Germany at another in order to bring pressure on Japan. China thus acts skilfully in playing off one country against another, but a country which ought to join hands with Japan to promote mutual interests must not adopt such an attitude. Japan's policy toward China is unchangeable, but the fact cannot be denied that the authorities responsible for the prosecution of this policy have sometimes made mistakes, causing misunderstandings among Chinese as a result. Under these circumstances, no perfect understanding has yet been reached between the two countries. Much is said about mutual friendship, but they are suspicions at heart.

Japan and China are in a position where they cannot separate. Both Chinese and Japanese should take this opportunity of ascertaining the root of evils, and both should remedy whatever defects may be discovered. They ought thus to establish a great co-operative principle for the future.

The Chinese Agitation

Yorodzu.—Chinese rioters at Wuhu have attacked and plundered Japanese shops and injured several Japanese. We should not tolerate such acts. When violence is used, steps should be taken to suppress it. Japan has only goodwill toward China. It is regrettable that she should allow herself to be carried away by instigation. Foreign papers in Peking are strongly abusing the recent statement of Viscount Uchida. Chinese are being misled by these abuses. What does the anti-Japanese movement mean at this time of keen racial rivalry?

A New Chinese Indemnity

Tokio Nichi Nichi.—Great importance attaches to the report that the diplomatic corps at Peking has addressed a note to the Chinese Government demanding indemnity for the damage sustained by foreigners in China owing to internal disturbances since the First Revolution, and that the Chinese Government has agreed to make investigations immediately and to pay an indemnity where claims have been found reasonable. This report makes us feel kindly toward China and gives us a more anxious regard for her future.

It is seven years and five months since the first Revolution of China. Though we do not know particulars of the damage caused to foreign interests during the time, it must have been very considerable. The demand for compensation for such damage will not only add to the financial difficulties of China, but it will also promote encroachment on her sovereignty.

In some cases the damage was incidental to the civil war, but in other cases it was deliberately done because of an anti-foreign spirit. There are anti-foreign movements in China from time to time. Chinese are burning Japanese goods in their possession, and a boycott of Japanese merchandise has been organised. Chinese coolies on the water front refuse to handle Japanese goods. Japanese shops and houses are wrecked and the inmates attacked. Who can guarantee that there will be no further repetitions of similar incidents in regard to other countries? The present demand for an indemnity, therefore, cannot be the last settlement of accounts with China. That this should be made necessary is a refutation of the reasons upon which China bases her request for the reduction or cancellation of the Boxer indemnity and also to the spirit in which the Allies may entertain the request. Such arrangements as China desires regarding the Boxer indemnity would be meaningless, for they would not be based on any actual improvement in domestic conditions in China.

In anti-foreign, and especially in anti-Japanese agitations, the Chinese are preparing the petard with which they themselves will be hoisted. Unless they alter their attitude, the conclusion is imperative that China will go to rack and ruin.

Anti-foreign riots prove that China's demand for the reduction or cancellation of the Boxer indemnity, for the withdrawal of foreign garrisons, and for the abolition of extra-territoriality is untenable. How can foreign residents in China, which is unable to guarantee the safety of their life and property, entrust her with the right of exercising control over them?

We find it difficult to see why the diplomatic corps regards the present as a good opportunity to obtain an indemnity, but the demand may be interpreted as a lesson against the reckless actions of some statesmen, students, and other short-sighted and misguided patriots in China. It is most important for China to unify the whole country, to strengthen the position of the Government, to make financial readjustments, to reform the police system, to establish the foundation of national defenses by reorganising the army, to make greater efforts for the exploitation of railways, rivers, and mines, to enlighten the people by promoting education, and to rule the country democratically on a basis thus strengthened. In order to attain these objects, there is no alternative for China but to rely on the aid of the most friendly country, whose interests are most closely connected with those of China. The Chinese should wake to the fact that their anti-Japanese movements give them no benefit. Should the present question of an indemnity serve to awake the Chinese, their enlightenment would be cheap however large the indemnity might be.

Navy's Mystery Ship

A "Mystery Ship" of the American navy during the war was the converted yacht Winchester. This was the fast boat formerly owned by F. B. Rouss and used by him as a ferry between his place on the Sound and the city.

The Winchester was one of the fastest American yachts, being able to make twenty-eight knots easily when she was first commissioned. Because of her speed she was chosen by American naval officers for the work of testing paravanes, the unique contrivance of Commander Burnly, R. N., for cutting the moorings of mines planted by the enemy.

Paravanes are constructed for three classes of vessels, slow cargo steamships of about ten knots speed, for battleships which can maintain a speed of twenty-two knots and for fast armored cruisers. The paravane built for the cargo ship would go "wild" if towed at high speed.

The paravane testing ground of the American fleet was western Long Island Sound from City Island east to Great Captain's Island. The Winchester's base of operations was City Island, where the paravanes were delivered for the test.

New Cure For Morphine Habit

It is common knowledge that a person addicted to the use of morphine may gradually increase the doses so that in a few months he may take with impunity a dose that originally would have been fatal. In other words, he establishes an immunity to the drug; and it seems probable, writes Dr. C. S. Bluemel in the Journal of the American Medical Association, that the immunity is due to the presence of an antibody or antitoxin in the blood.

When later the morphine is withdrawn the antibody remains in the blood unneutralised, and, according to the theory that is generally accepted, it is this antibody that gives rise to the characteristic symptoms of nervousness, leg pains, sweating, nausea, vomiting, diarrhoea, etc. These symptoms are relieved when morphine is administered.

It is evident that some form of toxin is present, and the withdrawal symptoms of sweating, vomiting and diarrhoea would indicate that the body is endeavoring to eliminate it.

My faith has been largely in elimination, and the idea suggested itself to me that elimination could be greatly augmented by injecting a salt solution into the veins.

The intravenous solution would dilute the toxins of the blood stream. To illustrate this mathematically: A man weighing 140 pounds would have approximately seven pints of blood, and an intravenous infusion of two pints of saline solution would dilute the toxins of the blood to approximately three-fourths of their original concentration. From this dilution of the toxins one would expect to see an amelioration of the withdrawal symptoms. The dilution would, of course, be temporary, for additional toxins would pass to the blood stream from the body tissues, but these toxins would in turn be eliminated with the excess fluid.

On these purely theoretical considerations I decided to attempt the treatment of chronic morphinism solely by elimination.

The treatment of a case is typically as follows: The patient is put to bed and his morphine stopped entirely. He is put on a semi-solid or a liquid diet, and is given cathartics. The patient receives from two to four intravenous infusions a day, according to his condition. The standard infusion consists of 1,000 c.c. (almost two quarts) of 0.9 percent sodium chloride in sterile freshly distilled water.

During the first few days of treatment the patient is given enough chloral at bedtime to insure a night's sleep. Hypnotics are an important element in the treatment, for the sleep they induce not only blots out large periods of discomfort, but also fortifies the patient mentally and physically.

The semi-solid or the liquid diet is continued as long as the patient feels any nausea, and he is kept in bed until all acute discomfort from the withdrawal of the morphine has disappeared.

Patients have suffered no ill effects from receiving three or four infusions daily for a period of a week or more. One patient received infusions in thirteen days amounting to 50 percent of her body weight, and her physical condition improved.

As an instance, a man who had used morphine for eleven years and was taking eight or ten grains a day hypodermically, received ten infusions over a period of five days. He had no trouble at any time with insomnia, and was discharged on the thirteenth day.

How Spiders Spin Webs Without A Foothold

By Garrett P. Serviss

The spider is a greater geometer than the bee. It even rises to the level of trigonometry. Millions of years before human intelligence laboriously evolved the principles of angular measurement these little eight-legged engineers spun their webs with mathematical precision, spaced the radii of circles without "protractors"; described true circumference without "dividers," bi-sected, tri-sected and multi-sected angles with complete indifference to Euclidian "axioms" and in defiance of hair-splitting logic, and "squared the circle," for all practical purposes, as well as if they had been acquainted with "Pi"

The superiority of the spider's mathematics consists in being inborn. If the spider had an intellectual comprehension of geometry it would get tangled up in its own web; but it goes about its amazing calculations—not by reasoning, but by simply "seeing" relations, as the eye sees objects.

Some naturalists think they belittle the goemetry and trigonometry of the ove and the spider by showing that they are not the result of thought, but only of instinct. The hexagonal cells and polygonal webs are formed not by calculation, but by an irresistible impulse, as natural as eating or breathing. Well so much the better. Where is the schoolboy who would not like to have been born with an arithmetical instinct? What a world of trouble it would have saved him!

Now, as to a spider crossing empty space without bridges, the fact that it can be done is another example of instinctive engineering, in the practise of which, it must be acknowledged, the spider is often safer than our school-taught engineers are. Its structures never fall under their own weight. It is an unerring judge of tht "margin of safety," without any formulas. It has a deeper and surer knowledge of air currents, "air holes," barometric changes, etc., than is possible to the most experienced "ace."

The delicacy of its perception of atmospheric buoyancy, and of relative specific gravities, goes beyond the range of the chemist's balance. If it wants to span an open space it may take advantage of movements of the air so imperceptible to human senses that the most elaborate apparatus or observation might fail to reveal them. The spider throws out a thread from its spinneret so fine and almost weightless that it floats more easily than the finest down.

It is so thin that it makes no impression on your sense of sight, unless the infinitesimal "waves" of a passing ray of light chance to break upon it, and then the thread gleams for an instant like a mathematical line drawn with a microscopic point of fire. After all, the spider is only doing, more easily, what the builder of the first Niagara suspension bridge did when he sent a preliminary kite-borne line across the gorge by the favor of a well-disposed wind, and used that line to draw other heavier ones across.

Among the things that spiders have found out, or were born with an instinctive knowledge of, is the art of living under water in a diving-bell. There is a species of spider which constructs a subaqueous habitation and fills it with air by carrying down a minute bubble at a time. Other spiders go ballooning, borne up by floating threads of their own silk.

Americans In Canada

"According to official figures the total number of Americans that have taken up residence in the Province of Alberta since 1905, including five months of the fiscal year 1918-'19, reaches 275,093," observes The Argonaut, which continues:

"In 1905 the Province of Alberta was organised, and statistical information has been kept since that date of the immigration into the three provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Saskatchewan ranks second, with 226,330 immigrants, and Manitoba third, with only 78,789. The largest migration into Alberta from the United States came in 1909-'10 and numbered 34,563; the smallest, in 1918-'19, numbered 5,613.

"The total population of Alberta in 1916 was given officially as 496,525.

"The British immigration during the thirteen years since the province was organised was 73,082, and other than British 40,282, making a total of 113,364, as compared with 275,093 immigrants of American nationality. The predominance of the American immigrant over all other nationalities is nearly 70 percent. Assuming that the proportion of immigrants from the United States residing in Alberta prior to the organisation of the province was about the same as is now existing, the total American population in Alberta today is probably 325,000 out of the entire 496,525 population, or about 65 percent. Of course, hundreds of Americans have taken up government land and have become naturalised, and many hundreds of immigrants have left the United States before they have completed their naturalisation there. But the predominance of Americans in Alberta is very marked, and this predominance has a direct influence upon trade with the United States."

BORDEN'S MALTED MILK is a complete food, not a milk modifier.
It can't sour; no germs can touch it.

In Borden's Malted Milk you get milk from healthy cows, purified, free from germs; the calf needs are modified—the baby needs are added. Reduced to a powder, it comes to you in an air-tight bottle, no hand has touched it. It is a complete food, so you add only water and boil one minute, and you can know that you are giving your baby the food his little body needs.

Weeks And Company To Extend

A dividend of five percent was declared at the nineteenth ordinary general meeting of shareholders of Messrs. Weeks and Co., which was held yesterday at their offices, 37, Kiangse Road. The shareholders were also advised of the enlargement of the premises by the taking over of the adjoining offices until recently occupied by Messrs. Sennett Freres.

Mr. L. J. Cubitt presided at the meeting and was supported by Messrs. H. Gaskin, H. M. Little and T. E. Trueman, directors, and other shareholders representing altogether 6,137 shares.

Following the reading of the notice convening the meeting, the chairman said:

"Gentleman, the report and accounts for the year ended February 28, 1919, have been circulated to shareholders and with your permission I will dispense with reading them now.

"The year under review has been exceptional, for in it we saw the cessation of hostilities and the almost instantaneous effect which was produced by the removal of certain restrictions on exports from the home countries of production, and the restoration of the freedom of the seas from submarine outrage.

"Accumulated orders which had been executed and were waiting for shipment were rapidly despatched, which had the effect of increasing our stock abnormally.

"All this extra cargo, however, represents value and has been laid down at better prices than we could place orders at today, so that the consequent increase in our overdraft is only of a temporary nature and normal figures will be reached as the stock is disposed of.

"The statement of accounts which your directors place before you today shows that our business is in a healthy and progressive condition.

"The payment of a dividend has been considered from all points of view by your directors and it was finally decided that the shareholders should participate in the profits of the year, and at the same time, in view of the increased overdraft with the bank, due to the heavy importation of stock, it would not be sound finance to pay out the usual amount for dividend; and your directors therefore decided to recommend a 5 percent dividend, and I am sure this decision will commend itself to you as it enables us to set aside a small sum to reserve and to pay a small bonus to the staff.

"The accounts as set forth show our position clearly, but these are one or two points I would like to emphasise.

"Our issued capital stands at $436,440.00 but of that amount $200,000 was expended in part payment of this property. That leaves only $236,440.00 as our trading capital. Against this our stock and book debts on February 28, 1919, alone amounted to $716,482.83, that is, more than three times our trading capital. Although our authorised capital provides for the further issue of 8,178 shares representing $163,560, the present exchange affects silver investments adversely, so that these shares cannot be put on the market at par. This, then, explains at once why the overdraft with the bank stands so high.

"The item of Sundry Creditors represents, for the most part, bills accepted but not matured.

"Under the Assets the value at which the ground and buildings stand is $48,000 below the cost value of the buildings, in addition to which we have written off all that has been expended on additions and improvements.

"For some time our store accommodation has been very congested, and to relieve this and give more scope to four of our departments, we have taken in No. 32A Nanking Road, recently occupied by Messrs. Sennett Freres, and when some extensive alterations and improvements have been effected, our furnishing department will be moved in there, which in turn will give more accommodation for the cabinet, outfitting and general departments. These are measures which your directors after careful consideration have decided to carry out, so as to be in a position to better display our extensive stock and cope with the steadily increasing business.

"At the factory the congestion of timber stock and work was felt equally severely, until we were able to rent the large three-storied godown directly opposite the factory in North Fukien Road. With this additional accommodation we have now an excellent place to store and mature our valuable stock of woods, which in turn provides ample accommodation in the factory for the workmen.

"A letter recently received from our secretary states that he has been promoted to Lieut.-Colonel and hopes to be demobilised at an early date.

"In conclusion, gentlemen, I would like to express the appreciation of the directors and shareholders present, of the loyal service of the staff, who have contributed to the satisfactory result of the year's working. For the same reason as makes it advisable to pay a smaller dividend, your directors, while wishing to give tangible recognition of the work performed, will recommend the payment of a 5 percent bonus to the staff, as against 10 percent last year.

"I will now propose the first resolution: That the report and accounts as presented be passed. Before putting it to the meeting I shall be glad to answer any questions to the best of my ability."

The resolution was proposed by Mr. L. J. Cubitt and seconded by Mr. H. M. Little and was passed.

That the available balance be disposed of as follows:

Pay a dividend at the rate of 5 percent for the year	21,822.00
Write off Buildings	8,000.00
Place to Reserve	5,000.00
Carry forward to new account	22,332.38
	$57,154.38

Proposed by Mr. L. J. Cubitt, seconded by Mr. H. M. Little.

That Mr. Leslie J. Cubitt be elected a director.—Proposed by Mr. A. K. Craddock, seconded by Mr. I. Ezra.

That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews be re-elected auditors of the company at an annual remuneration of $500.00.—Proposed by Mr. I. Mason, seconded by Mr. F. W. Fowler.

That a sum not exceeding 5 percent of the total amount of the annual salaries of the foreign staff of the company be placed at the disposal of the directors for distribution by them at their discretion to the members of the foreign staff.—Proposed by Mr. L. J. Cubitt, seconded by Mr. C. Shepherd.

Electric Cooking
THE IDEAL METHOD.
The Electric Oven, being free from the fumes of combustion does not require to be ventilated, therefore food cooked in it retains its flavour, the natural gases from cooked meat are not carried away through flues but retained in the oven. A clear, uniform heat is maintained which has the effect of closing up the surface of meat or poultry, thus preventing loss by evaporation.
Electric cookers are hired out at Tls. 0.50 per month by the:—
